

Former CIA and Counterterrorism Experts to Discuss Threats and Solutions 'Supporting the Security and Intelligence Demands of the Private Sector'

Total Intel will host a media-only breakfast discussion on the types of threats and risks facing today's global businesses and how intelligence gathering and analysis methods, previously available only to military and government organizations, can be used to help private companies mitigate economic, geo-political, terror or environmental threats and risks.

(PRWeb) February 28, 2007 -- Total Intel will host a media-only breakfast discussion on the types of threats and risks facing today's global businesses and how intelligence gathering and analysis methods, previously available only to military and government organizations, can be used to help private companies mitigate economic, geo-political, terror or environmental threats and risks.

Fortune 500 companies operating in the global marketplace are increasingly required to know and understand the physical and operational risks that impact their business and personnel. In response, National Security and Intelligence experts Ambassador Cofer Black and Robert Richer have created a new intelligence organization, Total Intelligence Solutions, Solutions to provide real-time intelligence, expert analysis and risk assessment services to the private sector.

WHAT: Media breakfast discussion on the types of threats and risks facing today's global businesses and how intelligence gathering and analysis methods, previously available only to military and government organizations, can be used to help private companies mitigate economic, geo-political, terror or environmental threats and risks.

WHERE: Willard InterContinental Hotel - Douglas Room, 2nd Floor, 1401 Pennsylvania Avenue NW, Washington DC 20004

WHEN: Wednesday, February 28, 2007 - 8:30 to 10:00 a.m.

WHO: Cofer Black, former Ambassador-at-Large and Coordinator for Counterterrorism at the State Department and CEO of the Black Group
Robert Richer, former Associate Deputy Director for Operations, Central Intelligence Agency
